Sweltering Heat Sends Old and Young in Search of Relief

Signs Aplenty That Summer Is Here Again

Old Sol burned down on residents of Fayette County today with an intensity that only summer could bring.

And summer, it is, which has brought the old fellow on his most direct position over this part of the world.

There were some reports that this community and other parts of Ohio were lucky to escape the torrid heat wave which has brought drought to northeastern states.

Washington C. H. residents haven't, however, escaped the high humidity which came with the 3.21 inches of precipitation which fell on the community since last Friday night.

Summer officially came to Washington C. H. last Tuesday and there were plenty of signs that residents felt the full lash of the old fellow of sky.

Children, home for the summer vacation months, took to old swimming holes, devoured ice cream and dressed in airy summer wear.

The Ohio Water Service Co. reported it was pumping about 900,000 gallons of water a day to satisfy needs of users here.

Soft Drink Sales Up

Officials of the soft drink bottling plants here said they worked overtime several nights last week and were distributing over 1,000 cases a day throughout this area.

Downtown restaurants said they were meeting preferences of customers by serving cold plate lunches, salads, iced tea and iced coffee.

Ice company officials said the rush was on in their business, which is one of the truest barometers of the impact summer heat makes on residents of a city.

Everywhere there was evidence that summer is on in full force in Washington C. H.

Kids, "itchy" with the heat, swarmed over the city's five playgrounds and sought relief along creeks and in old swimming holes.

Swimming Party

More than 50 youngsters from Cherry Hill and Rose Avenue schools were fortunate enough to make a trip Friday to Circleville for a plunge in the Gold Cliff pool.

Youngsters at the Fayette County Children's Home haven't been so lucky, but Mrs. David White-side, who looks after their welfare, said the home was cool even during the hottest months.

Sheriff Orland Hays said there were only three men locked up in the county jail who would have to bear the warm weather. He indicated that lock-ups drop during the summer months but pick up again in the fall.

There were several persons who could find little relief from the heat today—those who must work outside under the blazing sun, those employed in laundries or in any other place where heat has to be employed in the course of their work.

City Manager Named

SPRINGFIELD, June 28—(AP)—Worth N. Yoder of Sturgis, Mich., was appointed city manager of Springfield last night by the city commission. The post pays $8,500 a year. It had been vacant since Oscar Fleckner resigned last year to become state liquor director.

Meanderings

By Wash Fayette

A PTA-engineered trip Saturday for a Red Bird baseball game turned up several surprises for about 40 schoolboy patrolmen and a few fathers who went along with them.

Everything got off to a good start when the boys arrived at the gate and found that genial Al Bannister, president of the Columbus baseball club, had made provision for the boys to get in at no charge.

And, as if that wasn't enough, the boys found that they were seated along the first base line, where they had a commanding view of activity on the diamond. They got a special thrill when one of the batters smacked a home run cleaning the bases of runners.

Still another surprise came when a television camera was turned towards the boys and their image produced on television screens all over this part of Ohio.

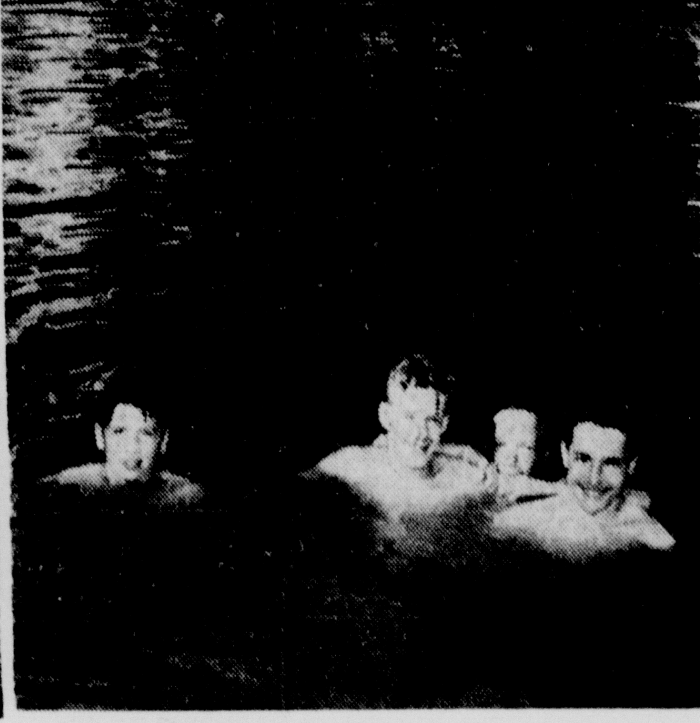

It was such a rousing evening for the PTA project that Mrs. Condon Campbell, who was in charge of arrangements, said she hoped it would become an annual affair.

EVEN A NAP under a shade tree on the courthouse lawn is interrupted by the sun which has moved around and put this sleeper out under its rays.

HOW TO KEEP COOL in the backyard is demonstrated by these girls who are swinging under a shade tree.

SUGAR CREEK PROVIDES a cool, although not clear swimming hole for youngsters trying to escape the heat.

OLD PAINT CREEK may not be too pleasant to the nose but it feels good to these youngsters who are wading under a railroad trestle off South Sycamore Street.

Rainfall Here Double Normal

Total So Far This Month 8.35 Inches

Additional rainfall of .63 inches over Monday and Monday night, brought the total so far in June to 8.35 inches, compared with a normal of 4.48 inches for the entire month.

Over part of the country, particularly some of the northern area, the rainfall was considerably in excess of the .63 inches recorded here for Monday.

Farmers are becoming concerned about their wheat, which is ripening rapidly, and also their corn, which is in urgent need of further cultivation to kill the weeds which obtained such a foothold during the rains two weeks ago.

The showers brought lower temperatures, but did not decrease the humidity, which has been unusually great for several days.

Monday's peak temperature was 82 degrees compared with 94 a year ago.

Reports from some parts of the county state that much water is standing in wheat, corn and soybean fields, and that some damage has already been caused to the corn and soybeans which have been covered with water in the lowlands the past two days.

SOME GET RELIEF

Cool air and rain brought temporary relief to many areas in the nation's hot weather belt today.

The dry-stricken northeastern states didn't get much rain to help the wilting crops, but cooling breezes from the Hudson Bay region broke a long hot spell in many sections.

Rain over many midwest states also brought temporary relief from the hot humid weather. Heavy falls were reported in parts of Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska.

New York, sweltering in hot humid weather and without substantial falls of rain for 32 days, got welcome relief last night as the mass of cool air moved in. The mercury hit a high of 89.4 during the day and it was 86 at 9 o'clock last night. Then the cool air hit the metropolis and sent the mercury down 10 degrees.

Similar drops were reported in New Jersey where thermometers have hit in the 90's for the last week and where no rain has fallen in 37 days. Some rain appeared in prospect within the next two or three days.

The New England states, rainless and hot most of June, reported temperatures in the 70's, a drop in some areas of from 10 to 20 degrees. Temperatures in upstate New York yesterday generally were in the 70's.

(Editor's Note: How deep is the business recession in the United States, and how long will it last? What is in store for the public as we slide away from the all-time record boom of 1948? Sam Dawson, Associated Press business news columnist, surveys the scene at the half-way point of 1949 in three articles. The first follows.)

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK, June 28—(AP)—This is a piece-meal recession. Times will get worse before they get better and when they get better it will be piece-meal, too.

Berlin Clouds Lighten With End of Strike

BERLIN, June 28—(AP)—Berlin's 38-day rail tieup came to an end today as strikers went back to their jobs and the Soviet-directed management resumed control of the west Berlin stations.

Traffic did not resume immediately. The management prepared to direct test runs over the tracks which had been idle since May 21, when 14,000 anti-Communist employees struck.

Western railroads said a few hours work on signals, switches and torn-up trackage was needed to get the freight yards in service again.

The four occupation powers, meanwhile, got ready for another try at breaking Germany's economic deadlock.

The deputy military governors of the United States, Britain, France and Russia prepared to hold their first meeting of this series. They are acting on orders put out by the Big Four foreign ministers council in Paris last week.

Chief aim of the impending meeting is to lay the groundwork for a "way of living together" that will afford economic traffic between the east and west zones of Germany and sectors of Berlin.

Man Admits Killing Four-Year-Old Boy

LANSING, Mich., June 28—(AP)—The cruel death of tiny Walter (Peewee) Eaton was officially listed as solved today in a neighbor's volunteered confession.

Four-year-old Walter's slaying, which shocked this capital city of Michigan, was charged to mustached Dudley Beatty, 29, father of four children.

Haggard and nervous, Beatty walked into police headquarters yesterday.

"I want to give myself up," he said.

Police Inspector Paul Taylor said Beatty, an unemployed factory worker, then blurted out a story of luring "Peewee" to his death Thursday night in a dark vacant lot.

The urchin's throat was slashed with a broken beer bottle. Authorities said he also was abused sexually.

Former Hot Rod Head License Confiscated

CLEVELAND, June 28—(AP)—Edward A. Miller, 19, former head of a hot-rod group here, was grounded for two years yesterday by a municipal court judge. Miller, arrested five times in two months for speeding, was forbidden by Judge Louis Petrash to drive for two years and fined $50.

That's the way it looks half way through 1949.

Assessments of what has happened to us so far, and what we can reasonably expect the rest of the year, range from soothing cluckings in Washington to gloomy headshakings of the bears in Wall Street. But the middle of the road estimate goes something like this:

Most observers expect the slump to hit bottom about the first quarter of 1950. They think it will

Curbs Applied For Ohio Divorce

Disabled Vet Help Sought by Daniels

By REED SMITH
COLUMBUS, June 28—(AP)—State senators want judges to wait three months before they hear divorce cases to give couples time to settle their differences.

"A waiting period will give them time to cool off," Sen. Edwin F. Sawicki (D-Cuyahoga) told the Senate Monday night. "Divorce is public enemy No. 1. There's one for every five marriages. We have a major duty to try to preserve our homes," Sawicki declared.

Senators passed his bill 23-6. It requires judges to wait another two months after hearing cases before they can grant divorces. The present waiting period is six weeks, judges can make divorces final immediately after hearings.

Senators also passed 27-2 a measure to make separate laws out of marriage annulment and divorce codes. Annulment grounds proposed by Sawicki are: either person already married or underage, lack of physical or mental ability, force or fraud.

Both measures now go to the House of Representatives.

Other Major Actions

Other major action as the lawmakers started their 26th week: Senators passed 29-0 an emergency bill to let counties issue up to $1,000,000 in poor relief bonds.

Representatives completed passage 110-0 a measure designed to help disabled war veterans get jobs.

The House defeated 62 "no" to 56 "yes" a bill to let public workers strike if their grievances could not be settled by arbitration.

The Ferguson Act now bans strikes by public employees and school teachers. The Legislature passed it two years ago. A bill to repeal the act cleared the House early this session but the Senate bottled it up. Gov. Frank J. Lausche has hinted he will veto the repealer if it reaches his desk.

Veteran Aid Bill
Sen. Albert L. Daniels (R-Highland) sponsored the bill to aid disabled veterans. It works this way:

The state Industrial Commission has to decide the degree of a veteran's service disability in making an award for an industrial injury. The part attributed to war injury is charged against the compensation reserve fund. In that way employers' liability rates for compensation remain normal.

"Employers in Ohio have been reluctant to employ disabled veterans because each employer was liable for the entire cost when a veteran suffered a second injury or occupational disease," Daniels explained. "This bill will lift the burden from employers."

While the first round went to the administration group, at least one and possibly two more hurdles remained.

The first vote was on an amendment sponsored by Senator Holland (D-Fla.) and others. It simply proposed to keep the provision of the present law which lets the government get court orders to block strikes imperiling the national health or safety.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) has pending a proposal to keep the court orders but also provide for government seizure of plants in some circumstances.

Revival Next Spring
The economy is expected to start upgrade again next spring and slowly climb back during the last nine months of 1950. Most doubt it will get back to 1948 levels until 1951 or '52. In some boom in-

Ohio Municipal Court Bill Is Given O. K. by Committee

COLUMBUS, June 28—(AP)—Representatives of Cleveland and Washington C. H. failed today in attempts to effect changes in the uniform municipal court bill now before the House Judiciary Committee.

William J. Reichle, clerk of Cleveland's municipal court, told the committee the bill discriminated against Cleveland since all court employees there are under civil service.

He offered an amendment which would permit the clerk of courts to hire one or more cashiers, an index clerk and a typist, all exempt from civil service. He also asked the right to determine the number of employees to be hired by the new court, if set up, and the right to select the personnel from civil service lists.

His amendment was voted down by 8 to 7, with all Cleveland members of the committee opposing its adoption.

W. W. Hill, city manager of Washington C. H. read a resolution which he said had been adopted by the city council, requesting the Fayette County municipality be left out of the bill entirely.

Hill said the bill had been sponsored by the Fayette County Bar Association, but "the people don't know whether they want it or not." The city manager said he "was personally opposed to the new type court and can see no necessity for it."

Clark Wickensimer, president of the Fayette County Bar Association, told the committee the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce had asked the Bar Association to sponsor the bill, and he declared:

"City Manager Hill is the only attorney in town who is opposed to it."

Wickensimer said City Manager Hill also was city solicitor, and "if this bill is passed he'll have to give up one of his jobs."

Rep. Virgil Perrill (R-Fayette) said he was "not opposed to the municipal court bill," and the committee voted unanimously to keep Washington C. H. under the bill's jurisdiction.

Babies Turn Blue And Diaper Dye Believed to Blame

LAKE WALES, Fla., June 28—(AP)—A strange illness that turned newborn babies a bluish tinge at times, caused the death of a fourth infant today.

One other baby is still under treatment.

Miss Bree Kelly, superintendent of Lake Wales Hospital, said doctors believe the attacks were caused by poisoning from a laundry dye used in marking diapers.

"We're not sure," she added, "we've made a research of everything." Results of an autopsy are being awaited.

The five infants became ill June 21 a few hours after the first batch of diapers marked with a new dye containing aniline oil was used, Miss Kelly said.

Only last Friday, the American Medical Association Journal urged special precautions against poisoning babies with aniline dyes used to mark diapers. The journal said 72 cases of poisoning from coal tar derivative dyes had been reported and that five infants had died.

Production being slowed down in line with price declines

WASHINGTON, June 28—(AP)—The nation's production machine has throttled down to its slackest pace in three years' and no end to the slowdown has yet been sighted.

The Federal Reserve Board reported a 10.8 percent fall in production from last November's peak to the end of May. The board said another 2 to 3 percent drop is indicated for June.

Production is coming down with prices, and accompanying factory closings or slowdowns are boosting unemployment in the process.

The reserve board's report yesterday said output in May remained 74 percent above the average for prewar 1935-39. But it was nearly three percent under April and more than nine percent below May, 1948.

Meantime, there was no agreement over just how serious the nation's economic situation is. Secretary of Commerce Charles

Paddy Johnson Hit During Fog And Not Noticed

Mangled Body Not Found Until After Daylight

Paddy Johnson, 45, B&O section crew employe of Milledgeville, was run over by a B&O engine while he apparently was sitting on the tracks asleep in Milledgeville, around 3:30 A. M. Tuesday, and his badly mangled body was found about 6 A. M. by the crew of another B&O freight train.

Johnson had started his vacation Monday, reports indicate, and Sheriff Orland Hays, who, with the Coroner Dr. N. M. Reiff, visited the scene soon after the discovery was made, expressed the belief that Johnson had been struck while sitting on the tracks near the main crossing in Milledgeville. His body, partly dismembered, was carried nearly 350 feet down the tracks.

His glasses were found, unbroken, beside the track, and one arm was found nearly 300 feet from his badly mangled body.

"It looked like nearly every bone in his body had been broken," Sheriff Hays said in commenting on Johnson's condition.

It is believed that an engine, running light, struck him about 3:30 A. M., during a heavy fog, and the engine crew was not aware of the accident.

Johnson, single, had been employed on the section crew at Milledgeville for a number of years, and was widely known in the community.

His body was brought to the Gerstner Funeral Home here, where it remains pending word from relatives.

Efforts to locate relatives was started at once, and difficulty was experienced in reaching them.

Mrs. Betty Hedges, a sister of Westboro, was located Tuesday forenoon, and will reach here Tuesday afternoon to arrange for funeral services and burial.

Hillsboro Woman Drops Dead in Xenia Court House

XENIA, June 28—(AP)—Mrs. P. Ferguson, 70, of Hillsboro, died yesterday outside the Greene County common pleas courtroom. Coroner H. C. Schick said she apparently had suffered a heart attack.

Mrs. Ferguson was a spectator at the trial of Raymond Gill, 32, of Wabash, Ind., on a charge of larceny by trick. Gill is accused of swindling Mrs. Mary Ginegar of Jamestown of $850 for termite extermination which was not performed.

Mrs. Ferguson, a widow, was reported to have paid Gill $1,000 to rid her property of termites.

J. L. Purdy, of Hamilton, O., secretary of the Ohio Pest Control Operators' Association, testified for the state against Gill. He told the court the Gill method of treatment was not adequate. He also testified he had recommended that Mrs. Ferguson also filed charges against the defendant.

Mrs. Ferguson went to the courtroom door, said a few words to Purdy and then collapsed.

The Nation Today

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, June 28—(AP)—It's been almost seven months since this Congress—the 81st—started work. Except for rent control, it hasn't passed one major item of President Truman's campaign promises.

This is getting to sound like a phonograph record. Every month those watching the show here can pull another 30 days off the calendar and say "Nothing much, done yet."

It's been a dull session, indeed, to anyone looking down at it from the galleries, or in the committee hearings, the jaw-jaw-jawing has been endless, the results meager.

Before it quits for 1949, Congress probably will pass a couple of major items. It isn't likely to do more than that.

Then when it returns next January for the second half of its two-year term this 81st Congress, controlled by the Democrats, will get another crack at producing before the 1950 fall elections.

Perhaps nothing shows better what has been happening—or rather, what hasn't been happening—than all the talk about cutting down on government spending.

Congressmen and senators have outdone one another with their stern statements that Congress would reduce government expenditures and . . . but just go back a bit:

Last January Mr. Truman turned his budget over to Congress. The budget is his experts' estimate of what it will cost to run the government another year.

At once Rep. John Taber, New York Republican who preaches economy, got a look at the budget and said: "We'll have to go over it and try to civilize it."

That started a regular economy chorus. Congress has the power to cut the budget since it's Congress which votes the money for running the government.

All that started in January. Here it is, late June, and no real cuts have been made yet. Now a majority of senators are talking of having both houses simply pass a measure telling Mr. Truman to do the cutting.

If this goes through, it will be a very frank confession that Congress has failed or doesn't know how, to carry out one of its most important jobs: deciding what the government should spend.

As to major items. . . A public housing bill may go through. The Senate has approved it, the House is considering it now.

It's not so sure that a new labor law will be passed to replace the Taft-Hartley Act. Congress has been talking about this since January. The Senate is debating it now, will pretty surely pass some kind of labor law.

But unless the House also acts before it quits for 1949, there'll be no new labor law and T-H will stand. It's not at all certain the House will act on it. Yet, getting rid of T-H was one of the Democrat's biggest promises.

The Senate pretty surely will approve the Atlantic Pact. This doesn't need House approval since the pact, being in the form of a treaty, is a job for the Senate only.

But—beyond the pact, housing and labor—it's hard to see what important legislation this Congress will have time for before it goes home for the year.

"IT'S SO EASY TO PLACE A WANT AD"

Veteran Bonus Next on Slate Of Rep. Rankin

Bill May Be Offered At Present Session

WASHINGTON, June 28—(AP)—Having successfully rammed through the House a $65,000,000-000 veterans pensions bill, Rep. Rankin (D-Miss.) is now getting ready a bonus bill that may cost almost that much.

He won't say when he will present it to the House veterans committee, of which he is chairman, but he indicated he may seek action this session.

Servicemen would get $3 for each day of military life, $4 for those spent overseas, with a maximum payment of $5,000. The bill's cost has been estimated all the way from $14,000,000,000 to $60,000,000,000.

Some members of the committee said privately there will be no more major veterans benefits approved this session. "In view of the national economy," said one, "it's time to stop."

But Rankin wants the bonus money—"adjusted compensation"—to take care of almost all G. I. benefits.

He has held up legislation to extend "52-20" G. I. jobless pay (which expires July 25), terming such payments "rocking-chair money."

The bonus bill, Rankin said, "would deduct from the adjusted compensation all this sit-down money, and on-job training and college benefits. That way it would treat all veterans alike."

Rep. Huber (D-Ohio) is trying to get a House majority, or 218 signatures, on a petition to force the jobless-pay extension out of Rankin's committee.

Similar legislation now is being considered by the Senate labor committee.

The bonus would be in addition to a $72 a month, old-age pension bill which, despite administration opposition, was passed earlier this month. It is not expected to be approved by the Senate.

Meanwhile a 15-man group of House Republicans complained that veterans aren't getting some money due them soon enough.

Veterans ought to start getting insurance dividends this October, not next January, they insisted.

In a weekend statement they called delay in dividing up $2,800,000,000 in unused premiums "a scandalous political performance," and accused the Truman administration of planning payments to 16,000,000 veterans in

Post Just Inside Iron Curtain Determined Woman's Goal

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON, June 28—(AP)—A slim little miss from Ohio, chosen to be one of 19 women in the U. S. foreign service, wants to get inside the Iron Curtain—but not too far inside.

Patricia M. Byrne told news men she hopes to be assigned to Prague, Czechoslovakia, or anywhere else in eastern Europe except Russia.

"I wouldn't like the restricting kind of life there," she said, "although, of course, I'd go anywhere the State Department sent me. In Prague there's an opportunity for a meeting of east and west, and 1950, "because it is a congressional election year."

Carl Gray, administrator of veterans affairs, estimated last week that payments would begin around January.

The money accumulated from G. I. insurance premiums during the war when the government paid out far less in death claims than had been anticipated.

I'd enjoy working there."

There may be obstacles to getting the job she wants. But she never has paid much heed to obstacles. A slight limp hasn't bothered her, nor much of anything else.

From riveter to diplomatic service is a long step, especially for a girl, but Patricia is making it.

She spent two summer "vacations" from college as a riveter in a Cleveland warplane factory, and another assembling gun parts there.

"I'm a good worker," she said. A slight girl with a friendly grin, she got her appointment the hard way—by competitive examination against men and women contestants from all over the country.

Senate confirmation of the appointment of an ambition she has had since she was 13.

Her father, Edward F. Byrne of Cleveland, has encouraged her ambitions.

"My father taught us to be independent, and to do what we wanted to do—go after what we wanted," she said.

Her studies, she said, were shaped toward a foreign service job. She learned French and Spanish, and a little of the Russian languages.

She stood second in her class in high school in Cleveland, and was an honor graduate from Vassar. On a Vassar fellowship she won her master's degree at the school for advanced international studies here.

She has been employed with the Central Intelligence Agency here since, but says its employees are forbidden to describe their work.

Patricia says she hasn't the slightest idea what kind of job she will have in the foreign service. That and the place of assignment will be learned when she attends the special school for new members of the diplomatic service to study language, international relations, protocol, etc.

If she can't go to eastern Europe she wants to go to Rome or Tehran.

"There's an outside chance that I'll have to work in Washington for a period before going abroad," she said, "but I hope to be headed overseas by November or December, when the special study course ends."

A lively brunette, who wears horn rimmed glasses, Miss Byrne is an excellent swimmer, plays a strong game of bridge and likes the theater. She'll read anything that anybody will write about foreign affairs. She doesn't smoke, but says "an occasional cocktail tastes good."

Romance? "Women in the foreign service have to resign if they get married," Patricia said.

"I'm not engaged, a woman couldn't expect her husband to follow wherever her job took her. I expect to move around a lot."

Average meat consumption by Americans in 1920 was 135 pounds, about 10 pounds less than in 1948.

Ohio River. The "Beautiful Ohio" has been lauded in words and song by generations of past and present Americans. Bordered by fertile valleys which slope into wooded hills of almost 1,000 feet, it forms the curving southeastern boundary of our state. You can view the above scene from the John Rankin house, in Ripley, through which hundreds of slaves passed on their way to freedom in Canada. At a point below the house Eliza Harris, legendary figure immortalized in Uncle Tom's Cabin, crossed the icy river with her baby in her arms.

Logan Elm is about seven miles south of Circleville on State 361 in Logan Elm State Park. In April, 1774, Americans unprovokedly murdered the brother and sister of the celebrated tribal chief Logan. He retaliated with weeks of savage warfare. STUDEBAKER'S REALLY ROLLING! 1949 IS A STUDEBAKER YEAR!

Ball Games and What They Mean Here

Now that baseball, and its first cousin, softball, are now the center of summer sports here, we wonder how many of the more than 200 men and boys in organized play ever give a thought to its origin or changes that have been made through the years.

These ball games are an important part of the life of this community, just as they are in other typical American communities, as the great national pastime.

Here in Fayette County, there are four league teams playing baseball—two in Washington C. H., one in Good Hope and one in Jeffersonville.

For softball there are eight teams of men in the Recreation League that takes the field at night and half a score of teams made up of youngsters who play during the day.

These ball games not only provide sport for the players, but also relaxation and a valve for hundreds of spectators, both men and women, to "let off steam."

It's a grand sport and we have our forebearers to thank for it.

If you want to get a new light on a familiar subject, read what outsiders have to say about it. A follower of baseball, tracing the early development of the sport, chanced to read the account in the ninth edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, published in the seventies and long a familiar sight in American private libraries. Britannica, now an American product, was then published in England.

One interesting piece of information emerged. According to the British writer, the game was played with ten men on a side, the tenth being known as the right-shortstop, who played between first base and second. (This still goes for softball). Recourse to histories of the game show that this innovation was actually made in 1874, but was abandoned quickly.

How did baseball impress the Englishman? Said he:

"The drawback is so much being left to the umpire, and his decision being so frequently called for. Hardly a ball is pitched or struck, or a base run without his being called on for a decision, whereas the details of the game should be so plain and clear as only to call for an umpire's decision under exceptional circumstances."

There follows an esthetic comment. "The attitude of the striker is not an elegant one, and the pitcher is allowed to keep the formers' muscles too long on the stretch before actually delivering the ball."

However, there are some good features: "Baseball is quicker and a more lively pastime than the great English national game of cricket."

New Truths And Old

"I have never felt the need of any other ideas than those in which I was soaked from birth onwards. Thanks to them I have always had a perfect knowledge of what was truth."

These appalling words by the French essayist, Maurice Barres, might have been uttered in the United States. In fact, while they may not be so frank in admitting that their minds are shut to new ideas, persons just as hidebound as Barres are to be found on every street.

While there are many old truths which are indeed "eternal verities," truth is never necessarily at odds with new ideas.

It may not be life's greatest calamity, but it is among the most humiliating of experiences to drop a trayload of dishes in a cafeteria.

Many a youngster goes out to play with his shoes just soled and comes back home with his clothes rented.

Now Let Me Take You for a Ride

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK—(AP)—The firm was so large that it took up several floors of the skyscraper.

This particular floor was the idea factory, a kind of chain store of the mind. The floor was honeycombed with cubbyhole offices like a hive, so that each worker bee could create his ideas in semi-privacy.

In one cubbyhole a big young man sat staring amiably at a brassiere ad on the wall. It showed a bosomy young girl and bore the caption: "always in the springtime of life."

Down the corridor came the office receptionist, followed by a stocky balding man.

"Here," she said. She looked in at the big young man, tittered nervously, and went back to her desk.

"You about through, Jim?" Said the stock man.

"Sure, John," said the big young man genially. "Be with you just as soon as I finish clearing out my desk."

He opened a brief case and began stuffing his personal belongings into it from the desk drawers. He jerked open one drawer full of neatly filed papers and banged it shut again.

"Everything in calculated confusion," he said with a booming laugh.

In a few minutes he was through. He took a notebook pad and scribbled on it with a heavy black pencil: "there is nothing yellower than 1,000,000 bucks."

He put the pad on his desk. The two men walked to the elevator, and the receptionist bent her head to avoid speaking to them.

In the lobby the big man said, "how about one for the road, John?"

"Sure—one," said the stocky man.

At the bar bar Jim suddenly said:

"I can get two hundred bucks from this bartender anytime I want to."

"Sure," said John, "but why strain a beautiful friendship?"

They finished their drinks and walked out and took a cab. It swung across the hot heart of Manhattan to Riverside Drive, and rode northward into a cooling breeze.

"Squirrels put acorns into the ground, and we bury gold at Fort Knox," said Jim. "The squirrel can go back and eat the acorn. But gold is good for only one thing."

"What's that?" said John.

"Gold is only good for injecting into the veins of old misers to make them young again."

"Sure."

"Money! Money! Money! Money!" Jim suddenly shouted. The cabdriver turned and glanced at him uneasily. The taxi picked up speed.

"Why do people have to worry about money all the time?" said Jim. "Why don't they just use more credit, then nobody would have to worry?"

"Sure," said John, "it's easy." The cab left the highway, sped across some leafy avenues and turned into a small roadway. It stopped before one of a group of cheerful cottages bordering a lake in which swam two white ducks.

The two men went in and talked to a quite thoughtful man at a desk. Jim signed his name and then walked out and watched as stocky friend climbed back alone into the waiting taxi.

"You know it's only my heart that's tired, John," said Jim. "I just need a rest that's all."

"Sure," said John, "that's it." "I wasn't tired," said the big young man. "I'm really working for the boss on a big secret merger."

"Sure, I know."

"Always in the springtime of life!" said Jim, and laughed so loud the ducks on the lake turned in feathered wonder.

John waved goodbye, and the taxi drove off. As it turned off the roadway it passed a sign.

The sign said: "Sanitarium."

The Dollar: What It Will Buy Now

By George E. Sokolsky

The British are annoyed that they have too few dollars, although they ought not to complain, as they get so many of them for nothing.

Americans ought really to complain that they have too many dollars, for each dollar is worth too little and, therefore, more are required to make them serve. For instance, at the end of 1948, one United States dollar bought about 43 cents of raw materials as compared with 1935-39 average. A similar dollar bought only about 46 cents of construction and less than 45 cents of labor.

The consumer's dollar was worth about 61 cents on that base, nothing in these figures, collated by the national industrial conference board, says anything about quality either for goods or services. As the quality deteriorated, the consumer got less for his money.

This managed currency of ours has a wide fluctuation, depending upon what anyone will take or give for it. For instance, using the same 1935-39 base, the last time labor was willing to sell its services for a dollar or more was in 1936. In 1937, the labor dollar fell to 95.9 cents and it has been going down steadily. It now takes more than two dollars to buy a dollar's worth of labor. That reflects itself in all costs, including everything that the laborer's wife has to buy for her household. Naturally, the laborer asks for more dollars as his costs go up, but every time he does that, costs go up higher.

If this process is not broken somewhere, the laborer might have to be given ten dollars for one dollar of work. In other words, the United States dollar will then be worth a dime. And that would show up all around, in every price. At such a point, the printing press would have to be used to turn out dollar bills fast enough to meet the demand.

Congress fuses over the question of building and wants to pour more billions into building at public expense. Few politicians are willing to face or tell the truth, which is that neither private nor public capital can afford to do much building when the construction dollar and the labor dollar are worth less than 50 cents. That only means that it costs too much to build and whereas the government might take the loss and pass it on to the taxpayer, spreading it out thin over the whole people, building has been made unattractive for private capital because it is difficult, if not impossible, to make anything like an adequate return on an investment. For this government policy, particularly the Fabian Socialism of Chester Bowles, is responsible. In fact, the sensible investor will buy government bonds, which pay off so handsomely that they make all other investments unsound—which is very bad for the national economy. This constant sale of high-interest government bonds is a Socialist method for drying up reservoirs of private capital.

Phil Murray, Dave Dubinsky and other labor philosophers would solve this problem by what should be called the John L. Lewis dodge. Instead of demanding more dollars as wages, they demand dollars for social services. In any accounting of costs, it makes very little difference whether the amounts are cited as wages or social services, gifts or bonuses. The amount has to be added to the cost of purchasing labor and, therefore, brings down the labor dollar in terms of what it nets in the final result.

This dodge merely shifts payments from the individual worker to the labor union and makes the workers more dependent upon the ipse dixit of the union official. It also duplicates government social services; triplicates the process if the employer also provides some social services. And all these costs have to be loaded onto the purchasing value of the dollar in terms of labor and affect the price.

It is about time that we discarded Keynesian economics, which were based on the formula that two minus two equals four, and the fantastic notions of the new deal economists, who are now led by Leon Keyserling, the author of the so-called "Fair Deal," a linguistic shenanigan.

Unexpected Results From Bill Debate

WASHINGTON, June 28—(AP)—The heated Senate labor debate, now edging toward a crucial vote on injunctions, has accomplished two things never intended by the senators:

It has brought the CIO and AFL closer together, and it has widened their split with John L. Lewis. It is hard to imagine a reconciliation within many years.

The Senate chooses tomorrow between a 60-day injunction proposal for dealing with national emergency strikes, offered by Senator Holland (D-Fla.), and a government seizure plan offered by Democratic leader Lucas (Ill.).

The result is so uncertain the issue may be decided by a margin of only two or three votes.

Diet and Health Measures to Relieve Heart Conditions

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHEN the heart becomes unequal to its task of keeping the circulation going, the condition known as heart failure results. An unusually faithful organ, the heart, even in these circumstances, does not fail from lack of effort. On the other hand, if neglected, it beats more rapidly than ever to make up for its feebleness and finally wears itself out completely in a wild series of ineffective flutterings if help is not quickly given.

Measures to aid the failing heart usually consist of rest, diet, administration of the drug known as digitalis, which slows and strengthens the heart beat, and diuretics to increase the elimination of fluids through the kidneys.

Rest Essential

Even though rest is essential, it is not a good idea to keep the patient lying down, except during an attack, because this may allow fluid to collect in the lungs. A sitting position not only makes the patient more comfortable but puts less demand on the circulation.

The patient with heart failure is often short of breath. Breathing oxygen relieves the strain and overcomes this symptom. In some cases it is necessary to give morphine because it relieves anxiety, relaxes spasm, and reduces the hazards and effects of shortness of breath. Of course, a drug of this type must be carefully employed in the proper dosage and administered only by the doctor.

(Copyright, 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Whether or not digitalis should be used must be determined by the doctor. There are also certain other drugs, such as those containing mercury, which speed up the action of the kidneys and thus aid in the elimination of fluids. Just which of these preparations should be employed and how often depends on the severity of the condition.

Various Diets

Various types of diets have been used. For example, one suggested is six glassfuls of milk daily with toast, for a week or two. It would seem that a diet of this type speeds up the elimination of fluids through the kidneys.

Other diets employed are low in salt and are either neutral or acid ash forming. This type of diet also is used to aid in the elimination of fluid. It is necessary to give the patient enough fluids to satisfy the normal body needs but an excess should be avoided.

Prompt treatment of heart failure is important in order to prolong the patient's life.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

D. E. M.: I have been told that diabetes is incurable. If so, in what way can a physician be of any use?

Answer: It is true that there has been no cure for diabetes discovered up to the present. However, with proper treatment, including the use of insulin and diet, taken under the direction of the physician, the disease can be kept under control. Failure to have proper treatment may result fatally.

British-Argentine Pact Ignores U. S.

BUENOS AIRES, June 28—(AP)—Britain and Argentina signed a five-year trade agreement today, thus ignoring United States objections to the pact.

The signing was done in the presence of President Juan D. Peron, his wife and a group of high officials in the White Salon of Government House.

Sir John Balfour, Britain's ambassador to Argentina, and four ministers who form the Argentine National Economic Council signed the Spanish and English copies. The ceremony, broadcast over the Argentine network, required two minutes.

American business believe the two-way pact will cut off one of their important South American markets. The United States claims the pact violates the spirit of free competitive international trade.

American officials fear it might keep the United States oil and farm machinery off the Argentine market.

The president is honorary chairman of the Red Cross.

Dishwashing Spat Blamed for Death

SOUTH HARPSWELL, Me., June 28—(AP)—A dish washing "spat" between artist Stephen Ettnier and his young wife resulted in her death with a bullet lodged near her brain.

Ettnier, 45, told police his 24-year-old third wife shot herself at their home here Friday night.

Mrs. Ettnier, the former Jane Walden Pierce of Georgetown, O., never regained consciousness. She died last night.

Assistant County Attorney Arthur Chapman, Jr., said a "routine investigation" of the former airline hostess' shooting would continue.

Ettnier said his wife, whom he described as "high strung," was upset throughout a dinner at which poet Robert P. T. Coffin was the guest, over a mixup in the grocery order.

After Professor Coffin left a "spat" developed over who should wash the dinner dishes.

His wife went to her bedroom, slammed and locked the door. A few minutes later he heard a shot. He found Mrs. Ettnier slumped in front of a dressing table.

Nothing Special Planned Here On Fourth of July

Entertainments Set For Greenfield and Hillsboro, However

It looks like the Fourth of July would be safe and sane in Washington C. H. with plenty of time to just sit around home and loaf unless...

Celebrations of different kinds have been arranged here now and then in the past. But, this year nothing special has been planned, it was said by C. E. McCauley, the in-coming secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

If the people here want any excitement on Independence Day, they will have to buck the crowds on the highways to go somewhere else. Even firecrackers and such are taboo under the law now.

But, they won't have to go too far. There are to be celebrations at both Greenfield and Hillsboro.

Festivities Nearby

At Greenfield, entertainment for old and young is being lined up for the Fourth of July "Fun Fair." Festivities are to come to a close with a grand finale of fireworks.

At Hillsboro, the Rotary Club is to put on the second annual Southern Ohio All-Pony Show at Beery's Stables west of the town.

While the pony show is to be the feature attraction, an all-around Fourth of July program is being planned. There are to be concessions, rides and other forms of amusement with a fireworks display after the night show for the climax.

The Greenfield program is to open at 11 A. M. with a flag raising ceremony. The Pleasant Valley Boys, a radio troupe from WLW are to entertain from 11:05 A. M. until 5:15 P. M. with a couple of ball games at 2 P. M. and 3 P. M. sandwiched in for the sport-lovers.

The Ohio National Guard Company, Boy Scouts and veteran organizations are to conduct retreat at 7:15 P. M. and the McClain High School band is to give a concert at 7:45 P. M.

A "Midway," with its lineup of games, soft drink and eating places is to lend the carnival atmosphere.

Greenfield 'Fun Fair'

The Greenfield Recreation Council is sponsoring the "Fun Fair" and no admission to the park is to be charged.

The fireworks display is slated for 10 P. M.

Word from Hillsboro is to the effect that "entries are pouring in for the pony show and that 'several hundred ponies' are expected to enter the competition both afternoon and night. Indiana and Kentucky, as well as Ohio, are to be represented in the show, R. J. Davis, the show chairman, said.

A bigger entry list than that last year is anticipated.

Fair Signs Slated By Atomic Farmers

The Young Atomic Farmers 4-H Club met at the home of Joyce Theobald to make plans for its signs for the County Fair.

The club members plan to construct five signs, including one for dairying, beef, swine, sheep and vegetables.

Bobby Rife, vice president, was in charge of the meeting as the members also discussed the washing and grooming of livestock. After the business session, the group played games throughout the evening and refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Julie Pavey when the get-together will feature a wiener roast.

Lieut. H. R. Willis At Andrews Air Base

1st Lt. Harold R. Willis, USAF, of Washington C. H., is now stationed at Andrews Air Force Base, Washington, D. C., with the air weather service of the Military Air Transport Service.

Lt. Willis, who has served overseas for more than 35 months, was commissioned in November, 1946. Recently he participated in MATS first anniversary, which marked a year of scheduled air transport for all departments of the national military establishment. In addition MATS aircraft, personnel and component services were major factors in sustaining the Berlin Airlift.

The son of Mrs. Jessie Willis, 824 Temple St., Lt. Willis is married to the former Joan Malcolmson of Queensland, Australia. The couple have one child, John Richard, two-years-old.

Rabbits Seem Abundant Here

Much Smaller Game
Killed Every Year

Reports indicate that rabbits are unusually abundant in this community this year, great numbers of young ones having appeared in recent weeks with indications the number will be the largest in years.

Quail have been unusually numerous, some farmers report, and a number of coveys of young quail have been reported recently. According to a report reaching Conservation Commissioner H. A. Rider from Daniel L. Leedy, in charge of the cooperative wildlife research units of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Ohio ranks high as a game and fur producing state throughout the nation.

Based on the most recent complete reports from the individual states, 1946, Ohio had a calculated kill of 4,606,000 rabbits ranking a close second to Missouri, among 24 states reporting. Following Ohio were Indiana, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Iowa, Kentucky and Michigan.

In the reported take of fox squirrels by 14 states, Indiana ranked first with 1,775,000 followed by Ohio with 1,505,000, Missouri with 1,203,000 and Michigan with 786,000.

Ohio ranked third in the kill of gray squirrels with 994,000. West Virginia had a kill of 1,625,000 and North Carolina lead with 2,000,000. South Dakota, with a reported hunter kill of 3,550,132 pheasants and Nebraska, with an estimated kill of 2,000,000 far out-ranked any of the other 22 states reporting. In third place was Michigan with a kill of 904,367 and Ohio in fourth place with 868,000.

The figures on fur production in Ohio does not include the pelts shipped directly to out-of-state fur dealers by Ohio hunters and trappers. It is believed that at least 10 percent of the total Ohio fur catch is disposed in this manner. On this basis the average annual take of fur animals in Ohio would be approximately one million pelts placing the state among the first half dozen states in fur production. In recent years, 1946-1947, the raw furs taken by Ohio hunters and trappers have had an annual value of about $2,000,000.

Ohio's common fur bearers are the same species that constitute the bulk of the furs produced in the United States. Louisiana produces far more fur animals than any other state. The six leading states are Louisiana in first place followed by Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

DAMAGE HEAVY
CHILLICOTHE — Ross Counties are still taking stock to determine damage sustained in a heavy storm Friday night.

Game Protectors To Get New Hats

Within a short time Game Protector Irvin J. Patrick, and all other game protectors in Ohio, will be wearing Stetson hats for full dress wear instead of caps.

The Ohio Conservation and Natural Resources Commission at the June meeting at Put-in-Bay voted to replace the garrison-type cap, now worn by game protectors, with hats similar to those worn by Ohio Highway Patrolmen. The action followed several months of consideration and discussion.

Dr. Ben Talbot, Toledo member, has lead the crusade to "dress-up" the Division's game protectors claiming, "The Ohio protectors have made up an enviable record in law enforcement and in handling the details of the division's program on the county level and are considered throughout the nation as top-notch field force; it's time their uniforms reflected their respected positions."

Business Outlook

dustries the 1948 records may stand much longer than that.

But some industries will start up before others. That's because they had their jolt away back when you didn't notice it much. They're adjusted to reality and ready to go. That's what is meant by a piecemeal recession and recovery.

Things in general aren't as bad as some people talk them. But the whole world is watching what happens to us. There are signs the slump is becoming world-wide, and we are the business ring-leaders now.

Most business indicators here—but not all—are lower than in 1948, but most people expected that, even back in 1948. And this time most businessmen were well prepared for the slump.

Less Favorable Signs.

Indicators less favorable now than at the start of this year include: the federal reserve board's industrial production index; electric power output, lowest since April but 4 percent higher than a year ago; steel production, lowest since April, 1948; crude oil production, lowest since March, 1947; business loans, lowest since spring of 1948; business failures, steady mounting; and retail trade, down four percent so far this year.

But indicators which are more favorable than at the start of this year include: freight car loadings, highest since November, until the coal mine holiday; auto production, highest since 1929; soft coal production, higher until the holiday stoppage; engineering awards, up seasonally to the second highest level of the year; bank clearings, also a seasonal high for the year.

Unemployment is increasing, and may well get higher in the months ahead. But employment is up, too, reflecting both the steady increase in the total labor force and the seasonal trek to the farms.

Corporate earnings are sliding from their peak in the last quarter of 1948, but are still about as high as this time last year.

Inventories Down
Inventories are being held down, but are higher than this time last year—most observers think they are not dangerous this time.

The total of American's personal incomes has been dropping this year from its all-time December high. It's still about two percent higher than this time last year. Savings continue high, both as to national totals and rate of increase.

Consumer buying remains remarkably steady, although lower priced goods are being bought. Prices mostly have settled down quietly. Exceptions are the Johnny-come-latelies to the recession—such as metals, where the bottom seemed to drop out overnight.

Propping the economy this time are such things as social security, farm price supports and federal reserve bank controls. The over-all pace of the decline has been slowed because this recession has come in stages, bowing over one industry or so at a time.

Muddying every one's crystal ball just now, however, are some possibilities that can't be ignored: 1. Strikes this summer in key industries; 2. A fourth round of wage increases; and 3. The course of the cold war.

Strikes could jolt us all sharply, but might create new pipelines of demand to be filled later. Wage increases might raise purchasing power of those who got them, but also raise production costs of those who grant them. The cold war drains the public purse but also makes customers for some industries. Business would feel the effect of any change in the armament and European aid programs.

At mid-year, most business men are braced against some rough sailing in the months to come. A few still hope they'll be proved wrong.

William Timmons Enlists in Army

of Ohio" stake with its $2,000 pot on Friday, the biggest single day's distribution is set for Thursday when the horsemen will race for $4,000. The smallest purse is a juicy $750 and there are only six of them. The biggest purse is to be the $2,000 "Bluegrass." There are two other races (both stakes) for $1,200 and five for $1,000 and two for $800.

(Racing starts on Wednesday,

(By the Associated Press)
Could it be that Cincinnati's
Reds are in the wrong league?

That question might well be in the minds of the Redlegs as they arrived in Pittsburgh for a three-game series with the disappointing Pirates.

The Reds moved into the American League last night for an exhibition game with Detroit in the motor city. They started swinging from their heels early and when it was all over Cincinnati had a 10 to 4 victory against the club which is tied for third in the American loop.

Of course they were helped by six Detroit errors but for a change the Red hitters were on hand to take advantage of those miscues.
And of equal importance was the fact Johnny Vander Meer did his best pitching job since his first start of the season. He hurled eight innings and allowed only seven hits.

Vandy issued six walks but his showing was encouraging for Manager Bucky Walters.

Anyhow, the Reds came in here with a margin of 2½ games over the Pirates so it behooves them to get a little more of that solid hitting and good pitching if they

Cubs Down Braves For First Victory

The Cubs broke into the win column Monday morning in the second week of the Knothole League as they downed the Braves after three losses last week; 6-5.

In a close game all the way, the Braves took an early lead and then fell behind, before coming within one run of tying the tilt in the last inning.

Wilson was the "Babe Ruth" of the day, when he slammed out two home runs for the winners.

standing.

Manager Walters wasn't quite sure who he'd send to the mound for the opener against Pittsburgh but said it would be either Howard Fox or Eddie ERAUTT. The Pirates were expected to use Bob Chesnes, one of their few hurlers with a winning record.

Attendance Off
The Majors are headed for an attendance decline from last year's record breaking totals, comparative figures showed today.

With most of the 16 clubs having played nearly half their 77 home games, a check revealed that only six clubs are ahead of last year's figures.

Through games of last night, a total of 8,588,438 fans paid to watch the teams in action, as compared to the 8,965,152 who saw the same number of games in 1948.
That is a drop of 376,714.

At this rate, the majors are certain to fall approximately a million behind last year's record figure of 20,943,345.

The Cleveland Indians have suffered the biggest drop, having drawn about 145,000 fewer fans than in '48 at a corresponding date.

Cincinnati, Detroit, the New York Giants and Philadelphia
Phillies are others which have fallen 100,000 below last year's figures.

The Pittsburgh Pirates show the biggest gain, 180,000 more than last year. The Chicago White Sox, Washington Senators, Boston
Braves, Brooklyn Dodgers and St.
Louis Cardinals also are ahead of their '48 figures.

Only One Game

The Cardinals drew a night game crowd of 13,178 in the only regular game played in the majors yesterday, but the fans were doomed to disappointment as the Chicago Cubs beat the Redbirds, 6-4. The defeat prevented the Cards from tying the Dodgers for the league lead. Instead, the Redbirds are now a full game behind the Brooks.

The Yankees defeated the Giants in an exhibition game at Yankee Stadium, 5-3.

Joe DiMaggio, the Yankees' ailing outfielder, playing his first game of the season, went the full nine innings and declared his injured heel gave him no added pain. He failed to get a hit in four official times at bat.

The Philadelphia Phillies routed
the Athletics, by a one-sided 19-2 score, and the Dodgers beat Cleveland 4-3 in other exhibition tilts.

Marion opens its 19-session little grand circuit meeting July 4 and runs through July 23, with $75,000 in awards. Stakes will account for $18,000, over-nighters for the remainder.

A double-header will feature the Independence Day opening at Marion, with afternoon and night sessions, and General Manager Frank M. Foster said he had some of the country's top talent lined up for the Fairgrounds raceway meet.

One of the "big ones" is Delaware's Grand Circuit meeting
Sept. 19-23, with purses of $102,- 000. Top attractions is the "Little Brown Jug," the country's three-year-old pacing classic which will pay off better than $50,000.

That price tag makes the colorful "Jug," scheduled Sept. 22, the highest-pursed race ever held for pacers of any age.

This will be the fourth pacing of the "Jug" which was worth $35,- 358.65 when Ensign Hanover won the Inaugural; $38,200 when Forbes Chief took the second one, and $47,528.58 last year when Knight Dream came home in front in the three-heat classic.

This year the purse soars over $50,000 if there are five or more starters, and that number is cer-

A's Conquer Reds For Third Victory

The Athletics won their third victory of the season Monday when they downed the Reds at McCoy Field; 9-6.

The A's started off in fine form by building up a six run margin by the fourth inning and then gained two more runs in the sixth to put the game on ice.

The Reds through a scare into the winners, however, when they crossed the plate four times in the final inning to narrow down the gap.

Donkeys To Run Base Paths As City Teams Climb Aboard

The Washington C. H. all-summer softball league fans can relax a little bit next Tuesday evening when the VFW faces NCR with the assistance (?) of a dozen donkeys.

With the donkeys used as a only mode of transportation during the entire contest, the softball heroes will have to combine the talents of Ty Cobb and Buffalo Bill if they want to come out on the top side of the final score.

In the nightcap of a doubleheader, both teams will field a completely mounted players, with the exception of the pitcher and catcher. The batters will have to climb aboard every time they hit the ball.

This means that once the batter has belted the ball, his troubles have just started. A ball hit deep into center field could be an easy out if the batter's donkey gets stubborn—a trait rather characteristic of that animal.

And talking about characteristics, according to Miss Helen Owens, counselor for the Donkey Baseball Company, each one of the dozen animals which will be here has its own personal traits.

Miss Owens said the donkeys are all trained at the Green Valley Farms where they are taught a special position to play on the field and where and where not to go. But, she added, even so, the donkeys have a few "in-born" ideas.

For example, she said, "Gypsy Rose Lee," one of the animals is so named because she won't keep anything on, including a base ball player; and "Mae West"—always has a mind of her own.

An added attraction of the evening, according to Miss Owens, will be a "Lady Godiva" race between the fourth and fifth innings.

During the race, two members from each team will be in a relay during which they dress up in clothes from a suitcase, ride around the base paths and return to home plate, undress and tain since the payoff goes to the first five finishers.

A companion piece to the "Jug" on the Delaware program is a $5,000 event for nominees for the pacing classic who turned out to be trotters. Two other $5,000 stakes, one for two-year-old trotters and the other for two-year-old pacers, add luster to the card.

Hard Rainfall Soaks Diamond

Softball Twin Bill Cancelled Monday

A hard rainfall Monday evening which stopped before 7:30 P. M. but not before Wilson Field was similar to a submarine training station cancelled the first double header in the fifth week of the all-summer city softball league.

For although the rain stopped, the playing field was not only drenched but covered with a low-hanging fog which would have made playing under the arc lights quite a harrowing experience.

Thus a game slated to be one of the best in loop play so far this season, Hughey Legion vs Drakes, was pushed further down in the calendar along with the DP&L vs Universal tilt, no mean contest in itself.

The Hughey Legion vs Drakes tilt would have brought about the final end of the first place tie in the league. Up to date, both the legion post and the Drakes have been undefeated and have been at the top of the loop since it started at the end of May.

The game would have featured a long-awaited pitching duel between Rolland Chase and Joe Drake, both of whom have been hurling complete games all season without being over-generous with hits.

Tuesday night, if the weather holds up throughout the day, a double header will be played instead of the usual Tuesday single game.

The opener will be one of Monday's cancellations as Universal faces DP&L, while the nightcap will be the scheduled tilt between the Lawson Legion and Heinz Feed.

As usual, when a twin bill is being played, the opener will get under way at 7:30 P. M.

SYNOPSIS
In the Victorian library of his New England home, Proctor Barlow meditates on the life of his late sister, Elizabeth. She and her small daughter, Katherine, had lived under Proctor's roof, and his estranged husband arrives from a distant city "liquored" as usual. He falls into a sound sleep and the burial proceeds without him. Awakening to find the mourners departed, Marvell encounters his little daughter, Katherine. In her cheerful upstairs room in the Barlow house, father and daughter become affectionately acquainted. Returning home in bad humor, Proctor determines to rid the family of Marvell, forever. He makes ready for the final showdown.

CHAPTER SIX
BEN SAT through dinner in complete detachment—a kind of state he experienced sometimes in dreams. He talked sensibly enough of the European war, the symphony, gardening and other currently correct topics. His ears caught every sound—the sluffing of the pantry door as the maid went back and forth, the creak of the dumbwaiter that carried each course up and down from the kitchen to the butler's pantry, the rustle of the long linen cloth against his knees, even the soft breathing of the candle flames.

But behind the normal, familiar sounds that accompanied a family gathering around a table, Ben detected something else. It was a nameless rustling and he could only describe it to himself as the sound of fear. It was all nonsense, he told himself, I'm nervous because I am tired and Fanny's cold worries me and I am sorry about Elizabeth. Whose fear was he listening to? Not Emily's. She was serene in tactful deference to her three stalwart males. Not Proctor's. His attitude of condescension to the family nuisance was frozen at the peak of perfection. Not Marvell's. He was acting the part of the warm-hearted old rip to a point of ripeness that verged on farce. If it is any comfort to me, Ben thought, I am the means of communication between two aliens, as Elizabeth wished me to be because Katherine needs it.

When they had finished, Ben could not remember for the life of him what he had eaten. "We'll have coffee up stairs," Proctor announced stiffly. Emily murmured something about Katherine. The three men filed lugubriously to the library. Marvell counted to himself the hundreds of steps he had taken that day in and out of one room to another. It was as if the house had been planned to allow for the unnecessary passage of time as well as stairs.

With coffee, brandy and cigars passed in order, Proctor felt a little easier. He had seen the Manila envelopes on the desk. "I suppose," Proctor addressed Ben, "it would be wise to get through these details so that Marvell can leave for New York as soon as he wishes."

Ben asked, "Are you going to New York?" Marvell nodded. He was leaning on the mantel, his glass in his hand. He stood there flexing the fingers of his right hand. He was terribly wary of questions and questioners. He was tense to be off. Why had he stayed this long? Emily had pressed him to remain for dinner, for the sake of whatever amenities she considered necessary. He had yielded to her, too, in defeated weariness. What possible interest did he have in any of them now? The brief visit with Katherine was no more than a scratch on a hardened surface. He knew Proctor was afraid he would raise his voice in some way, that was why he had written him so generous a check. Why not call it quits now?

Ben had apparently digested Marvell's news. He walked over to the desk and picked up the envelopes.

"As this is very informal," he said with a rather professional smile, "we can go right ahead." He opened an envelope and took out the blue-backed legal forms. Proctor accepted his copy with a patronizing air of one who is already familiar with the contents but will generously wait for the others to catch up. Marvell unfolded his copy slowly and stared at the first line, "I, Elizabeth Barlow Coomes, being of sound mind..."

He read his way through the still terrible finality of the phrase struck him sharply. He wanted to cry out—to protest, to retrieve what was so irrevocable. But he had not allowed for this narrow margin of expression in himself. And he had no one to whom he could cry out. No one would listen.

Proctor's words, as thin as the flimsy in his hand, roused him. "When were these changes made?" "About three months ago. The exact date is written in."

"Why was I not informed?" "My dear Proctor," Ben reminded him in some irritation, "the private business of a client is kept, naturally, in strict confidence."

Now what had happened? Marvell eyed Proctor in some curiosity. There was such bitter dismay on his face that he winced. He turned to Ben. "Wait a minute, let me catch up. I haven't read it." Quickly his eye ran down the first dozen lines. "I give, devise and bequeath all my property, real and personal, to my husband, Marvell Coomes, except such as may otherwise be disposed of under other provisions... I nominate and appoint Marvell Coomes and Benjamin Hall as co-executors of...

No bond or security required... What have you done, Elizabeth, he thought, with a sudden burst of tenderness that made his eyes moist, and why now, why now?

Proctor brushed his arm. "I won't allow this. You are not fit to be executor."

Ben gave a legal little cough. "May I say, Proctor, that he is perfectly capable of carrying out the formalities involved. Do not confuse this role with that of a trustee of the Barlow estate which does not come into this document at all. I also have a note for you."

He handed Proctor a square envelope.

"I am not confusing anything," Proctor turned on Ben viciously. "I am quite well aware of the fact that the Barlow heirs are protected by the trust fund, over which my sister has no control. Her share of that passes to Katherine intact. But I am also aware," his voice trembled a pitch higher, "that the value of Elizabeth's free property is considerable and belongs by all that is decent to Katherine."

"Or to you," Marvell regretted that. Proctor's face was so filled with hate that even Marvell was awed.

"This will was re-made three months ago. You were last here at Thanksgiving. At that time, I knew the contents of her will. I

Holdups Admitted By Two Men Held

YOUNGSTOWN, June 28 —(P)—Two Cleveland men held in Campbell today admitted holdups at two Akron small loan companies. The men, Steve Gomori, 29, and Charles Gaw, 20, were arrested after trying to escape by a chartered plane here following an attempted holdup in a Campbell jewelry store. They are charged with intent to rob and carrying concealed weapons.

They admitted to Detective Stephen Backus and Lt. J. Mosley of the Akron police department that they held up and robbed the Household Finance Co. of Akron of $988 last April 5, and the Economy Loan Co. of $148 last June 17. ## Four Teachers From Here to Go To NEA Meet

Six-Day Convention To Open for Teachers Sunday in Boston

Four teachers from the Washington C. H. public school system will leave Thursday to attend the 87th annual convention of the National Education Association, which opens Sunday in Boston, Mass.

The teachers are: Miss Marjorie Evans, dean of girls at WHS; Miss Opal Davis, principal of Cherry Hill school; Miss Amelia Pinsky, 5th grade teacher at Cherry Hill; and Miss Ruth Stecher, WHS English teacher.

They plan on driving to the six-day conference, which will attract some 3,000 delegates from all parts of the United States and territories.

Threatened investigations of school and college textbooks by the House committee on un-American activities, legislation in various states requiring loyalty oaths of teachers and policies concerning employment of teachers who are members of the Communist party have focussed attention on two reports which will be presented at the convention.

Miss Stecher is the official delegate from Washington C. H. to the convention. Delegates who will be at the gathering will represent some 825,000 members in the state and local education associations affiliated with the NEA, the teachers' national professional organization.

The NEA committee on tenure and academic freedom headed by Martin Essex, superintendent of schools at Lakewood, O. will present results of a nation-wide study of legislative developments on teachers' oaths and related state requirements.

An influential policy making group of the NEA will report among other things on the following stands it has taken with regard to Communism in education:

(1) Communism should be taught, but not advocated in the nation's schools and (2) Members of the Communist party of the United States are unfit to discharge the duties of a teacher in this country.

The Educational Policies Commission, most influential policy-making group of the NEA, has pointed out that "investigations, book banning and efforts of intimidation... become too violent, frequent or widespread they can seriously impair the efficiency of the school system."

Among other problems which will be brought before the convention delegates are federal financing of the school systems to help pay for rising costs of operation and loyalty oaths for teachers and public officers.

Motorists Face Diverse Laws

Drivers Advised to Check on Traffic Laws

Vacation-bound motorists can expect to run into a variety of diverse traffic laws when they take to the road this summer, according to Ray Brandenburg, chairman of the inter-industry highway safety committee for this area.

And, Brandenburg indicated, motorists will find that penalties have been made more severe for those who violate "the rules of the road."

Unless drivers are careful they will find themselves haled before peace authorities and meted stiff jail sentences, he said.

Those who expect to visit California, for example, will find that this state can sentence a man to prison for five years and hand him a $5,000 fine if he is found guilty of driving while intoxicated.

Reckless driving in Georgia can draw a $1,000 fine for the driver and a one-year jail sentence while in North Carolina the same offense could result in a $10,000 fine and a two-year stretch in prison.

Brandenburg suggests that motorists who go into unfamiliar surroundings should inquire about traffic regulations.

"Ignorance of the law is a poor defense and could cause a blot on your driving record," Brandenburg said.

Brandenburg suggests that motorists check into regulations on such things as hand signals, turns on red and green lights, U-turns, speed limits and parking rules.

He said there is utter confusion on rules for conduct of pedestrians.

The boys also planned a scrap drive to be held Wednesday and talked over a proposed camping trip, before arranging for the next club meeting.

Slated for July 12 at the home of Gordon Writsel, Norman West, Ronald Moon and the host will all tell the club members about the progress of their calves at that time.

Harry L. Smith, 70, of 527 High Street, is at home today nursing a sore shoulder after his bicycle crashed into the car of Forest H. McCoy on West Court Street Monday at 3:45 P. M.

McCoy had stopped his car when he saw the accident was unavoidable. Smith rolled underneath the auto.

Rains Interfere With Corn Plowing

Rains over the weekend again halted corn cultivation in most of the county, for several days.

Farmers were greatly delayed with this important phase of producing a corn crop, when the rains occurred week-before last, and as a result weeds obtained such a foothold that, with the additional delay in plowing, they have become a real problem, and spraying to kill them is being resorted to by quite a number of farmers.
